CITY TO HAVE CASH

If It Gives the Street Railway a Franchise.

ONE PER CENT OF GROSS RECEIPTS

Demand by the Ordinance Passed Last Night—Council Consumed a Few Hours in Considering It Before the Regular Session Began—No Light Legislation.

Council had a long talk before the regular session last night, and from 7:40 until 9:30 kept the reporters and the crowd waiting the settlement of what matters they had to consider.

The principal business was an effort to settle the street railway ordinance in order that they might be a unit when it came to a vote. President McDonald was present, and fought hard for his company, but the councilmanic mind seemed decided. The first proposition was to have the company pave between the rails and pay a license for each car. This was finally thrown out, and the second providing that the company pay one per cent of its gross earnings was submitted. This was discussed at length, and gave way to the idea that the company should pay nothing but a license fee. After debates and discussions without number, council eventually decided the city should have one per cent of the gross receipts for the franchise. Mr. McDonald also objected to the bond of $5,000 and providing council with a list of stockholders, but his objection was overruled. Walter B. Hill was present for A. H. Clark, and council decided on the line of action which showed itself at the regular meeting.

Richard Arter, of Lisbon, was admitted to the meeting with the expectation that something would be done with the light question, but was disappointed. It was 9:30 when President Purinton called council to order. The minutes were read, and the ordinance to improve Minerva street from Walnut to Avondale was laid over once more. The old street railway ordinance was then taken up, and ordered laid on the table indefinitely. The monthly reports of the city officers were taken up. The treasurer showed the following balances: General $1,339.76, street $745.85, wharf $57.61, police $137.70, light $146.75, sink $8,341.16, interest $1,663.95, sanitary $499.60, street repair $1,313.71. The fire fund is overdrawn $440.14, and the bridge fund $256.13. Mayor Gilbert had an unusually slow month, and only collected $23 in fines and licenses. The fire company answered 16 patrol calls, conveyed nine prisoners to four calls for ambulance. There was not a fire call during the month, but a box was placed at the Specialty glass-works. Upon the suggestion of the president the other reports were laid over until the next regular meeting.

The pay ordinance came next, and the light bill for October of $511.16 and the board of health bills were added to the list published in the News Review last night. Mr. Purinton asked if there was enough money in the treasury to pay the bills; and was informed by Clerk Hanley that the light fund was overdrawn, but enough was left in the general fund to settle all accounts. The roll was then passed, and an ordinance to assess a special tax for relaying pavements on Sixth street from Jefferson to Monroe was passed under suspension.

The new street railway ordinance came next, and everything went well until the clerk reached section 8, when Mr. Purinton thought it would be wise to insert that the company should keep the rails at curves well greased at all times. Mr. Stewart said the company would be more anxious to do that than council would be to have them comply with the order.

The next change made was the omission of the section requiring the company to pave between the rails and on the outside of the track, but they will have to keep the paved streets in repair. Nothing was said about this, as the matter had already been decided upon in caucus.

Mr. Purinton thought 30 feet was too close to allow street cars to approach each other, and Mr. Marshall wanted to know what the company would do if they wanted to run trailers. "You can't legislate to prevent collisions," said Mr. Marshall.

"No, but if we catch a motorman running closer than that we can arrest him and make him pay a fine," said Mr. Purinton.

Mr. McDonald said he was willing the distance be increased, and it was decided to make it so no cars can approach each other within a distance of 100 feet unless coupled.

The next suggestion came when the clause relating to the penalty of blockading the line for a period of more than eight minutes, was read. "If a man is building a house and blockades the time for one-half day he can only be fined $20. That is not enough. It should be five times that much and go to the street car company for their loss," said Mr. McDonald.

Clerk Hanley said they could transfer; but Mr. McDonald wanted to know what would happen if they had no cars, and informed council the company proposed to make a great deal larger street railway than at present appeared. Mr. Challis moved that the fine be raised from $20 to $50, and although Mr. Marshall thought $20 was enough, the motion was passed. Then the word "intentional" was placed before obstruct at the suggestion of Mr. Marshall. Mr. Stewart didn't think the ordinance was right, as it allowed persons to obstruct the track after 11 o'clock, and stated cars did not stop running until after that hour. Mr. Purinton informed him there was not the amount of travel at that hour. The council were now ready to vote on the ordinance, but Mr. McDonald asked to say a few words. He said:

"Gentlemen, I want to make a suggestion on one point, and that is in regard to paying the city one per cent of the gross receipts of the company. I cannot say definitely, but I don't think there is a town in the United States of 15,000 inhabitants where a street railway is compelled to pay one per cent of the gross earnings. Why, in many large cities they make no requirements like that. In Allegheny they are at this time talking over this same business, and propose to license the company $40 a car. They can better afford to pay $40 a car than we can afford to pay anything. That will be an obstacle in our way, and if you are passing that ordinance to suit our company, I don't think you need go any further. It is not at all satisfactory to the company I represent, and they will not build under the ordinance. It is a hardship that should not be required, and if the ordinance is being passed to cover our case you might as well stop at once. We do not object to paying a reasonable license of so much per car." Mr. Marshall moved it be passed under suspension, and every member present voted yes and the street car bill was an ordinance.

An ordinance establishing street railway route No. 2 was passed, and the clerk was authorized to advertise for sealed proposals to construct the railway. This was also passed under suspension.

An estimate showing the Avondale street improvement to have cost the city $7,399.79 was next read, and as $4,939.79 is still due the contractor, the matter was left in the hands of the finance committee. An estimate of the Sixth street improvement showed $609.59 still due, but as the contractor did not need his money, nothing was done.

Clerk Hanley called attention to $7,000 in notes now due, and over due, and by the last of the month $11,000 will be due with no provision made for payment, and no levy until February. For a short time the silence was oppressive, but it was at last broken by President Purinton, who said: "The best thing to do is to pay as much of the payroll as possible out of the general fund, and then borrow in anticipation of the tax levy. When the December payroll comes due we can do the same thing. I think it would be advisable to use up all the money we have." It was finally left in the hands of finance committee.

A. H. Clark's bill came up once more, and was referred back to him, with instruction to render a bill for services to date.

Mr. Marshall moved that the lowest bidders on the various culverts be instructed to commence work at once in anticipation of the sale of bonds. This was carried.

President Purinton brought up the light matter, and Mr. Stewart reported the committee had not yet met, but would hold a session next Monday night. The clerk reported that Chas. H. Birkett objected to the assessment of $183.71 on the Avondale street improvement, on the ground that it was more than 25 per cent of the taxes.

A Good Supper.

The turkey supper served in the Ferguson & Hill building last evening for the benefit of the African Methodist Episcopal church drew a large crowd, and was highly successful.

Talk to Ironclad.

Telephonic communication was made with Ironclad yesterday, and now the people of that busy village may converse over the wires with neighboring communities.

Married Today.

Doctor Lee, at his home on West Market street, this afternoon said the words which made Mr. David Bradhona and Miss Mary Morrow husband and wife.

IT HAD A GOOD YEAR

Fairmount Home Is In the Pink of Condition.

THE FINANCES ARE ALL RIGHT

Superintendent M. M. Southworth Makes a Splendid Report—Columbiana County Has Its Share of Representation—They Drink Plenty of Milk.

Superintendent and Mrs. Southworth have prepared their annual report of the Fairmount Children's home, and interesting extracts are given below. It is their sixth, and the twentieth of the home.

The number of children received into the home since its organization is 1,721, and 357 were cared for during the fiscal year which ended Oct. 31, the daily average being 133, and the per capita cost $92.79. During the year homes were found for 85 children, nine of whom were adopted. Twenty at one time were installed with good Christian people in the west, and at another time 10 were put in good homes in that part of the country. Stark county sent 56 during the year and Columbiana 49. The farm and garden gave them abundant supplies, and the dairy with its 13 cows yielded plenty of milk. During the year 83,394 pounds of milk were used by the children and employees, and 2,682 pounds of excellent butter were made.

Following are some interesting figures from the report. The first number are the boys and the others are the girls. Where but one is given it is the total: General statistics—Number admitted since organization, 1,019—702; orphans 204, father living 393, mother living 447, parents living 677, parents separated 454.

Statistics for the year—Present at beginning of year, 87-37; received during the year, 60-45; returned to the home, 15-13; sent to parents or guardian, 31-9; adopted, 6-3; indentured, 41-35; transferred to other institutions, 4-1; discharged on account of age, 3-2; on trial, 5-7; died, 1; present at close of year, 257; daily average, 133; received from Stark county, 34-32; from Columbiana, 26-23.

Receipts and disbursements—Received from Stark for expenses, $6,968.51; Columbiana, $5,790.62; other counties for non-resident inmates, $44; boarding inmates on private account, $905; other sources, $68.50; cash on hand end last year, $975.68; total, $14,152.31.

Disbursements—Cash paid Stark county, $675.86; Columbiana, $450.58; orders on Stark, $6,968.51; Columbiana, $5,790.62; cash on hand, $366.74; total, $14,152.31.

The total expenses for the year including repairs amounted to $12,759.13, and $417.50 was received from boarding inmates and other sources. The net cost of maintaining the home was $12,341.63. The per capita cost daily average of 133 was $92.79, current expenses $95.93, total expenditure $95.93.

The showing made by Mr. and Mrs. Southworth could not be better, and their management of the home is known and appreciated in the two counties.

SCHNEIDER IS WEARY.

He Will Sue if the City Continues to Ignore His Claim.

Edward Schneider, who asks the city to give him $1,750, as reparation for the injuries his son received about a year ago, grows weary. The lad was playing in an alley when a pile of old lumber, which, it is claimed, was left there because of neglect on the part of the city, toppled over and broke his leg. Schneider wants $1,500 damages and $250 for the services of a nurse and a physician. If council does not consider his claim soon, he threatens to commence suit against the city.

QUIT FOR THE YEAR

No More Ice Will Be Made Until Next Spring.

The ice company drew the last ice yesterday, and have quit manufacturing for the season. They will not cut a pound during the winter, and will sell nothing but the manufactured product next year. A cold storage building and a large wagon shed are being added to the plant, and would have been completed several weeks ago, but for some necessary red tape demanded by the railroad company.

WILL MOVE TO PALESTINE.

Mr. E. H. Sebring Will Have Charge of the Old Plant.

The changes made necessary in the Sebring company by the erection of the new plant at East Palestine, will begin about the first of the year, and so far as East Liverpool is concerned, will necessitate the removal from the city of one of the best known and most popular manufacturers. Evas H. Sebring will have charge of the old pottery, and will move his family to Palestine. Mr. and Mrs. Sebring are justly popular with so many friends that they will be sadly missed.

state the removal from the city of one of the best known and most popular manufacturers. Evas H. Sebring will have charge of the old pottery, and will move his family to Palestine. Mr. and Mrs. Sebring are justly popular with so many friends that they will be sadly missed.

DOCTOR LEE IN EUROPE.

The Reverend Gentleman Told His Experiences to a Large Audience.

A magnificent audience assembled last evening in the First M. E. church to hear Rev. John Lloyd Lee, Ph. D., lecture on the customs and people of those European countries he visited last summer. The gentleman, with that fluency for which he is noted, carried his interested hearers from Scotland through England, France and Germany into Italy, and dwelt at some length on the ruins and beauties of Rome. His observations of London and Paris were most interesting, and the description of the code as carried out by the students of Heidelberg university was a splendid feature. The people of every country visited were the doctor's especial study, and he gave the audience some expressions which shows him a keen and close observer. The humorous side of the lecture sparkled and flashed in a delightful manner, and the experiences of the doctor because of his ignorance of the language in a few of the countries brought forth many a hearty laugh. The lecture was illustrated throughout with many excellent stereoscopic views, adding not a little to the interest. The doctor spoke for an hour and 15 minutes, and every moment of the time was thoroughly enjoyed.

THE MIDDLE OF DECEMBER

Will See the Bridge Finished and Ready For Use.

The bridge will be completed by the middle of December, and the grading for the electric line across the river will be done this week. It is expected that the bridge can be crossed within 10 days or two weeks, so rapidly is the work of construction being pushed forward. Workmen today began paving in front of the Thompson block in Chester, and the building will soon be ready for occupancy. It was the original intention to pave the street through the entire length of the town, but that has been postponed until spring.

THE FIRST VISITOR.

Colonel Hill Was on Top of a Bridge Tower.

Since the completion of the bridge towers the engineers have frequently asked their friends to visit the little platforms on top, and enjoy the magnificent view which the location and height allows. These invitations have for various reasons been gently, but none the less firmly, refused until this morning, when Colonel Hill climbed to the top of a tower and remained there some time. The colonel is the first, other than the employees, to stand on the tower. He enjoyed the visit.

MAY CONSOLIDATE.

First Voters Want to Join the McKinley Club.

The meeting of the First Voters last night was from point of attendance not a success, and nothing was done toward forming a permanent organization. Another meeting is announced for next Friday evening when the question will be settled for all time. There is a strong sentiment favoring the continuance of the organization, but many members want the club as a body to join the McKinley club, holding that one strong organization is better than two weak ones.

THE ACME OF INIQUITY

Is What President McDonald Styles the Action of Council.

After council adjourned last night, President McDonald, of the bridge company, expressed his opinion of the street railway ordinance.

"While there are many things in the bill just passed that did not suit us there were none which we could not have arranged to accept. But this one per cent of the gross receipts is the last straw. That I consider the crowning act of injustice, the acme of councilmanic iniquity," said Mr. McDonald.

A CASE OF DIPHTHERIA.

It Is in the Township and Was Reported to the Trustees.

A child of J. W. Reed, California Hollow, was reported this morning to the township trustees as suffering with an attack of diphtheria.

In the city proper there are but two cases of the dread disease, and they will be discharged within the next few days. The health authorities have not ceased their efforts, but will take every precaution to prevent the disease from breaking out again.

THEY COULD NOT AGREE

That Is Why Mr. and Mrs. Liber Don't Live Together.

JUDGESMITH GRANTED A DIVORCE

An Unusual Case From West Township. A Leetonia Estate Causes a Suit and Charges of Fraud—Postponement Allows an Important Trial.

Lisbon, Nov. 11.—[Special]—Before court adjourned last night Judge Smith granted a divorce because the principals could not agree.

Some time ago James Liber, a resident of West township, asked legal separation from his wife, May E. Liber. The petition claimed they were married 17 years ago, and had lived together until their second child came into the world. When the babe was yet an infant Mrs. Liber went to the home of her parents, and has since resided with them, refusing after repeated solicitation to return to her husband. She never assigned any reason other than that they could not agree, and the judge granted the request of the husband.

William C. Miller brought suit today against Mame Rigby, administratrix of the estate of Ransford Percival, of Leetonia, and against E. Percival, John W. Murray and W. S. Potts. The petition asks that the court set aside the sale of the Commercial hotel, of Leetonia, fraud in the transaction being given as the reason. At the October term, five years ago, Miller got judgment against Mrs. Rigby for $927.72. The hotel belonged to the estate, but before it could be sold to satisfy the claim, Miller claims the defendant secured an order of sale from probate court, and sold it for $4,000 to Murray who conveyed it to Potts. He claims this conveyance was fraudulent and made for no consideration, and in support of his declaration asserts that the Percival heirs still hold the title and receive rental to the amount of $1,200 a year. He wants the sale put out of the way, and the property sold to satisfy his claim.

The case of John Esterly against F. E. Mohr was in the assignment of today, but was set aside because of the illness of one of the principals. Two cases set for one week from next Thursday have been postponed, and the suit of Gen. J. W. Riley against Treasurer Cameron has been put on the docket instead. William McLaughlin will be tried that day for forgery.

Anthony Miller and wife recovered judgment today for $518 from Henry Coldsnow, executor of the estate of Frederick Coldsnow, who was cared for by his daughter, Mrs. Miller, for seven months before he died.

The first application to probate court for change of name under the new law passed by the last legislature was filed with Judge Young today. The petition is filed by Elizabeth Agnes Porter, of Wellsville. She says she has always resided with the family of Bartholomew Porter, but now wants the name of Elizabeth Agnes McDonald, her father's family name.

Marriage licenses were granted to Elmer Mellinger and Lizzie Detron, and to Austin Ferguson and Annie Rayle.

HE KEPT THE MONEY.

The Company Paid For a Mistake in Calculation.

Last Saturday, when a local pottery firm paid one of their employees, they unintentionally placed a larger amount in his envelope than he was entitled to receive. The mistake was discovered later, and the over paid man was requested to return the sum not due him. This he refused to do, and complaint was made before Mayor Gilbert, who upon investigating the matter found the firm could obtain no legal redress.

BROKE HIS FINGER.

James Walters Met With a Peculiar Accident.

James Walters had a finger broken yesterday afternoon in a peculiar manner. He was out driving, and had one line wrapped around a little finger. The horse made a quick movement, and jerking the line the bone snapped and the finger was broken.

Arranging a Compact.

While waiting for council to meet last evening Attorneys Hill and McDonald began to talk about their respective ball grounds, and it is probable a compact will be formed so that any person who refuses to pay for one ground after using it will not be permitted to play on the other.

Two New Boys.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. William Copestick, this morning—a son.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mercer, Jackson square, last evening—a son.

That will be an obstacle in our way, and if you are passing that ordinance to suit our company, I don't think you need go any further. It is not at all satisfactory to the company I represent, and they will not build under the ordinance. It is a hardship that should not be required, and if the ordinance is being passed to cover our case you might as well stop at once. We do not object to paying a reasonable license of so much per car." Mr. Marshall moved it be passed under suspension, and every member present voted yes and the street car bill was an ordinance.

An ordinance establishing street railway route No. 2 was passed, and the clerk was authorized to advertise for sealed proposals to construct the railway. This was also passed under suspension.

An estimate showing the Avondale street improvement to have cost the city $7,939.79 was next read, and as $4,939.79 is still due the contractor, the matter was left in the hands of the finance committee. An estimate of the Sixth street improvement showed $609.59 still due, but as the contractor did not need his money, nothing was done.

Clerk Hanley called attention to $7,000 in notes now due, and over due, and by the last of the month $11,000 will be due with no provision made for payment, and no levy until February. For a short time the silence was oppressive, but it was at last broken by President Purinton, who said: "The best thing to do is to pay as much of the payroll as possible out of the general fund, and then borrow in anticipation of the tax levy. When the December payroll comes due we can do the same thing. I think it would be advisable to use up all the money we have." It was finally left in the hands of finance committee.

A. H. Clark's bill came up once more, and was referred back to him, with instruction to render a bill for services to date.

Mr. Marshall moved that the lowest bidders on the various culverts be instructed to commence work at once in anticipation of the sale of bonds. This was carried.

President Purinton brought up the light matter, and Mr. Stewart reported the committee had not yet met, but would hold a session next Monday night. The clerk reported that Chas. H. Birkett objected to the assessment of $183.71 on the Avondale street improvement, on the ground that it was more than 25 per cent of the taxes.

A Good Supper. The turkey supper served in the Ferguson & Hill building last evening for the benefit of the African Methodist Episcopal church drew a large crowd, and was highly successful.

IT HAD A GOOD YEAR

Fairmount Home Is In the Pink of Condition.

THE FINANCES ARE ALL RIGHT

Superintendent M. M. Southworth Makes a Splendid Report—Columbiana County Has Its Share of Representation—They Drink Plenty of Milk.

Superintendent and Mrs. Southworth have prepared their annual report of the Fairmount Children's home, and interesting extracts are given below. It is their sixth, and the twentieth of the home.

The number of children received into the home since its organization is 1,731, and 357 were cared for during the fiscal year which ended Oct. 31, the daily average being 133, and the per capita cost $92.79. During the year homes were found for 85 children, nine of whom were adopted. Twenty at one time were installed with good Christian people in the west, and at another time 10 were put in good homes in that part of the country. Stark county sent 56 during the year and Columbiana 49. The farm and garden gave them abundant supplies, and the dairy with its 13 cows yielded plenty of milk. During the year 83,394 pounds of milk were used by the children and employees, and 2,632 pounds of excellent butter were made.

Following are some interesting figures from the report. The first number are the boys and the others are the girls. Where but one is given it is the total: General statistics—Number admitted since organization, 1,019—702; orphans 204, father living 393, mother living 447, parents living 677, parents separated 454.

Statistics for the year—Present at beginning of year, 87-37; received during the year, 60-45; returned to the home, 15-13; sent to parents or guardian, 31-9; adopted, 6-3; indentured, 41-35; transferred to other institutions, 4-1; discharged on account of age, 3-2; on trial, 5-7; died, 1; present at close of year, 73-37; number called for during year, 257; daily average, 133; received from Stark county, 34-22; from Columbiana, 26-23.

Receipts and disbursements—Received from Stark for expenses, $6,968.51; Columbiana, $5,790.62; other counties for non-resident inmates, $44; boarding inmates on private account, $305; other sources, $68.50; cash on hand end last year, $975.68; total, $14,152.31.

Disbursements—Cash paid Stark county, $675.86; Columbiana, $450.58; orders on Stark, $6,968.51; Columbiana, $5,790.62; cash on hand, $296.74; total, $14,152.31.

The total expenses for the year including repairs amounted to $13,759.13, and $417.50 was received from boarding inmates and other sources. The net cost of maintaining the home was $12,341.63. The per capita cost daily average of 133 was $92.79, current expenses $95.93, total expenditure $95.93.

The showing made by Mr. and Mrs. Southworth could not be better, and their management of the home is known and appreciated in the two counties.

SCHNEIDER IS WEARY.

He Will Sue if the City Continues to Ignore His Claim.

Edward Schneider, who asks the city to give him $1,750, as reparation for the injuries his son received about a year ago, grows weary. The lad was playing in an alley when a pile of old lumber, which, it is claimed, was left there because of neglect on the part of the city, toppled over and broke his leg. Schneider wants $1,500 damages and $250 for the services of a nurse and a physician. If council does not consider his claim soon, he threatens to commence suit against the city.

QUIT FOR THE YEAR

No More Ice Will Be Made Until Next Spring.

The ice company drew the last ice yesterday, and have quit manufacturing for the season. They will not cut a pound during the winter, and will sell nothing but the manufactured product next year. A cold storage building and a large wagon shed are being added to the plant, and would have been completed several weeks ago, but for some necessary red tape demanded by the railroad company.

WILL MOVE TO PALESTINE.

Mr. E. H. Sebring Will Have Charge of the Old Plant.

The changes made necessary in the Sebring company by the erection of the new plant at East Palestine, will begin about the first of the year, and so far as East Liverpool is concerned, will necessitate the removal from the city of one of the best known and most popular manufacturers. Evas H. Sebring will have charge of the old pottery, and will move his family to Palestine. Mr. and Mrs. Sebring are justly popular with so many friends that they will be sadly missed.

DOCTOR LEE IN EUROPE.

The Reverend Gentleman Told His Experiences to a Large Audience.

A magnificent audience assembled last evening in the First M. E. church to hear Rev. John Lloyd Lee, Ph. D., lecture on the customs and people of those European countries he visited last summer. The gentleman, with fluency for which he is noted, carried his interested hearers from Scotland through England, France and Germany into Italy, and dwelt at some length on the ruins and beauties of Rome. His observations of London and Paris were most interesting, and the description of the code as carried out by the students of Heidelberg university was a splendid feature. The people of every country visited were the doctor's especial study, and he gave the audience some expressions which shows him a keen and close observer. The humorous side of the lecture sparked and flashed in a delightful manner, and the experiences of the doctor because of his ignorance of the language in a few of the countries brought forth many a hearty laugh. The lecture was illustrated throughout with many excellent stereoscopic views, adding not a little to the interest. The doctor spoke for an hour and 15 minutes, and every moment of the time was thoroughly enjoyed.

THE MIDDLE OF DECEMBER

Will See the Bridge Finished and Ready For Use.

The bridge will be completed by the middle of December, and the grading for the electric line across the river will be done this week. It is expected that the bridge can be crossed within 10 days or two weeks, so rapidly is the work of construction being pushed forward. Workmen today began paving in front of the Thompson block in Chester, and the building will soon be ready for occupancy. It was the original intention to pave the street through the entire length of the town, but that has been postponed until spring.

THE FIRST VISITOR.

Colonel Hill Was on Top of a Bridge Tower.

Since the completion of the bridge towers the engineers have frequently asked their friends to visit the little platforms on top, and enjoy the magnificent view which the location and height allows. These invitations have for various reasons been gently, but none the less firmly, refused until this morning, when Colonel Hill climbed to the top of a tower and remained there some time. The colonel is the first, other than the employees, to stand on the tower. He enjoyed the visit.

MAY CONSOLIDATE.

First Voters Want to Join the McKinley Club.

The meeting of the First Voters last night was from point of attendance not a success, and nothing was done toward forming a permanent organization. Another meeting is announced for next Friday evening when the question will be settled for all time. There is a strong sentiment favoring the continuance of the organization, but many members want the club as a body to join the McKinley club, holding that one strong organization is better than two weak ones.

THE ACME OF INIQUITY

Is What President McDonald Styles the Action of Council.

After council adjourned last night, President McDonald, of the bridge company, expressed his opinion of the street railway ordinance.

"While there are many things in the bill just passed that did not suit us there were none which we could not have arranged to accept. But this one per cent of the gross receipts is the last straw. That I consider the crowning act of injustice, the acme of councilmanic iniquity," said Mr. McDonald.

A CASE OF DIPHTHERIA.

It Is in the Township and Was Reported to the Trustees.

A child of J. W. Reed, California Hollow, was reported this morning to the township trustees as suffering with an attack of diphtheria.

In the city proper there are but two cases of the dread disease, and they will be discharged within the next few days. The health authorities have not ceased their efforts, but will take every precaution to prevent the disease from breaking out again.

THEY COULD NOT AGREE

That Is Why Mr. and Mrs. Liber Don't Live Together.

JUDGESMITH GRANTED A DIVORCE

An Unusual Case From West Township. A Leetonia Estate Causes a Suit and Charges of Fraud—Postponement Allows an Important Trial.

Lisbon, Nov. 11.—(Special)—Before court adjourned last night Judge Smith granted a divorce because the principals could not agree.

Some time ago James Liber, a resident of West township, asked legal separation from his wife, May E. Liber. The petition claimed they were married 17 years ago, and had lived together until their second child came into the world. When the babe was yet an infant Mrs. Liber went to the home of her parents, and has since resided with them, refusing after repeated solicitation to return to her husband. She never assigned any reason other than that they could not agree, and the judge granted the request of the husband.

William C. Miller brought suit today against Mame Rigby, administratrix of the estate of Ransford Percival, of Leetonia, and against E. Percival, John W. Murray and W. S. Potts. The petition asks that the court set aside the sale of the Commercial hotel, of Leetonia, fraud in the transaction being given as the reason. At the October term, five years ago, Miller got judgment against Mrs. Rigby for $937.72. The hotel belonged to the estate, but before it could be sold to satisfy the claim, Miller claims the defendant secured an order of sale from probate court, and sold it for $4,000 to Murray who conveyed it to Potts. He claims this conveyance was fraudulent and made for no consideration, and in support of his declaration asserts that the Percival heirs still hold the title and receive rental to the amount of $1,200 a year. He wants the sale put out of the way, and the property sold to satisfy his claim.

The case of John Esterly against F. E. Mohr was in the assignment of today, but was set aside because of the illness of one of the principals. Two cases set for one week from next Thursday have been postponed, and the suit of Gen. J. W. Riley against Treasurer Cameron has been put on the docket instead. William McLaughlin will be tried that day for forgery.

Anthony Miller and wife recovered judgment today for $518 from Henry Coldsnow, executor of the estate of Frederick Coldsnow, who was cared for by his daughter, Mrs. Miller, for seven months before he died.

The first application to probate court for change of name under the new law passed by the last legislature was filed with Judge Young today. The petition is filed by Elizabeth Agnes Porter, of Wellsville. She says she has always resided with the family of Bartholomew Porter, but now wants the name of Elizabeth Agnes McDonald, her father's family name.

Marriage licenses were granted to Elmer Mellinger and Lizzie Detron, and to Austin Ferguson and Annie Rayle.

HE KEPT THE MONEY.

The Company Paid For a Mistake in Calculation.

Last Saturday, when a local pottery firm paid one of their employees, they unintentionally placed a larger amount in his envelope than he was entitled to receive. The mistake was discovered later, and the over paid man was requested to return the sum not due him. This he refused to do, and complaint was made before Mayor Gilbert, who upon investigating the matter found the firm could obtain no legal redress.

BROKE HIS FINGER.

James Walters Met With a Peculiar Accident.

James Walters had a finger broken yesterday afternoon in a peculiar manner. He was out driving, and had one line wrapped around a little finger. The horse made a quick movement, and jerking the line the bone snapped and the finger was broken.

Arranging a Compact.

While waiting for council to meet last evening Attorneys Hill and McDonald began to talk about their respective ball grounds, and it is probable a compact will be formed so that any person who refuses to pay for one ground after using it will not be permitted to play on the other.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 11.

By the way, didn't we hear something, a few weeks ago, about a man named Isaac R. Sherwood? Was he not a candidate for some office?

THE Canton News Democrat makes such ridiculous indications for the next election that it is compelled to label each one to keep its readers from believing they are jokes.

NO ONE is surprised at the announcement that Mrs. Malloy, the first woman to find a place in the electoral college, is from Ohio. She was born in Franklin county, and moved to Wyoming several years ago.

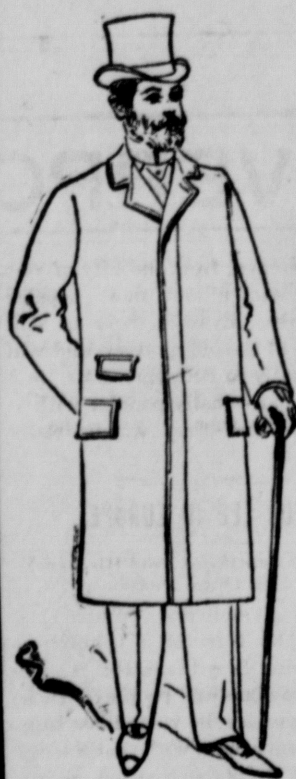

AN INJUSTICE. The action of council last night in asking one per cent of the gross receipts of the proposed street railway, is observed by all enterprising citizens as nothing short of unjust. The company may not be able to make the line a success, and the demand for one per cent of every dollar taken in is, to say the least, an injustice which should not be placed upon the enterprising spirit which makes improvement possible. The demand is not made in other cities of similar size, and those who support the company declare there is no precedent demanding it. Council should protect the city, but that is no reason why it should enact laws to keep out enterprise. Council is to be commended for protecting the rights of the city, but it is to be condemned for placing an injustice upon any one, and this action in connection with the street railway is certainly an injustice.

EVERY LITTLE HELPS. Much is being said concerning the tariff legislation of the new congress, and the speculation so freely indulged in may or may not become some part of a reality. The favorite prognostication turns toward the Dingley measure, and the idea prevails that this will take the place of the Wilson bill as soon after the first week of April as can conveniently be arranged. If that be true, it will not be a return of the McKinley tariff, and the duties will not be in line with the schedules of the bill which brought such bountiful harvest to invested capital in the early days of the decade. Mr. Dingley never intended his law to do anything but provide sufficient revenue to do away with the Democratic deficit. It was not, in the sense we understand protection, a protective measure. The horizontal increase over the schedules of the Wilson bill would do little other than give more money to the government. Industries would be aided only a little, and there could be next to nothing in returning the rate of wages destroyed by Democracy. Pottery would get its share of the increase, but that share would be small. It would not begin to reach the cut of Wilson's committee. It might lend some aid in keeping back the tide of foreign importation, but it would not give the potting industry that opportunity for which manufacturers and workmen have longed through so many weary months. As a revenue measure, the Dingley bill would probably be a success. As a protective tariff, it would be a miserable failure.

ONLY ONE CLAIM.

If there is a disposition on the part of certain Republican leaders to sacrifice any part of the party's principle to those men of other political faiths who aided to bring about the victory of last week, they should be made to understand that the fundamental principle of Republicanism is a protective and not a revenue tariff. The people placed the Republican party in power because the hard times were not the result of the theory upon which Mr. Bryan stood, but because their suffering was caused by the policy of low tariff for which the Democrats have always stood. It was the repeal of the Wilson law and the restoration of wages to the standard allowed by the McKinley bill which prompted the millions to cast their ballots for William McKinley. While they knew a Bryan triumph meant more hard times and more privation, they also knew a Republican avalanche would restore to them that which they lost when Grover Cleveland became president. We honor the sound money Democrats who forgot party and became patriots; but because they were good in one instance, is no reason why they should be bad in another. They have no claim upon the Republican party other than that the money of the country be maintained. When they broke away from the declaration of the Chicago convention and to all intents and purposes endorsed what the Republicans had done in St. Louis, they did nothing about recognition. They did not expect it then, they should not have it now. If they can forget their free trade fallacies they should be welcome in the Republican party; but their room is better than their company if they bring with them the policy of low wages and soup houses.

A Nation of Medicine Takers.

It is an accepted fact that the American people are the greatest users of medicines of one sort or another on the face of the earth. Imaginary ills make up a large part of man's earthly troubles. Some people need only to read the vivid description of some chronic disease, and they are at once victims to the complaint in question. Many patent medicine vendors make use of this peculiarity and lead some people to believe that their tired feeling comes from their blood not being rich and red. Millions would be saved and our general health would be better if we would take medicine only when really needed and then get a remedy specially prepared for the disease with which we are suffering.

As an illustration, when you have sore throat, there can't be any imagination about it. Your throat hurts; probably is covered with white ulcerated spots, and you know you need a remedy. Use good judgment. Get a cure put up for this one purpose. There is such a remedy. Tonsiline is its name, and it is a wonder in its field. Being put up for this one class of diseases, it cures quickly, surely, and many times as if by magic. No family can afford to be without Tonsiline in the home, as it is a certain cure for Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Croup and Quinsy. Ask your neighbors who have used it. All druggists sell Tonsiline. 25 and 50 cents.

gates present from different parts of the United States and Canada.

General Master Workman Sovereign presided. Charles Wright of this city welcomed the delegates and introduced Mayor Warner, who delivered an address.

General Worthy Foreman M. J. Bishop of Boston replied to Mayor Warner and stated the objects of the order. T. B. McGuire of Amsterdam, a member of the executive board, delivered an address and Mrs. Ford of Rochester, the only woman delegate, also spoke, after which the meeting went into executive session.

The meeting throughout is strictly secret, nothing being given out except through the press committee appointed by the general master workman, but your representative was informed, from a very reliable source, that one of the most important subjects of deliberation would be the tariff, and that the present congress will be asked to take the duty off window glass.

A BANQUET TO HANNA.

He Says McKinley Will Be Untrammelled In Selecting a Cabinet.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.--A luncheon in honor of Mark A. Hanna has been given in the banquet hall in the Equitable building. The host was Isaac M. Seligman, of the house of J. & W. Seligman and the guests included a number of the most prominent business men and financiers in the city. More than 30 guests sat at the tables. Besides Mr. Hanna and Mr. Seligman, the following were present:

Ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt, Carl Schurz, Seth Low, Edward N. Gibbs, A. G. Paine, J. H. Rhodes, John A. Stewart, General Horace Porter, Cornelius N. Bliss, Solomon Loeb, Jacob Schiff, Theodore Roosevelt, William Barbour, Edward E. Poor, David L. Einstein, General Louis Fitzgerald, Edwin Lauterbach, George Coppel, Fulton Cutting, D. O. Mills, Charles Stewart Smith, J. Edward Simmons, Edward King, David G. Leggett, James Speyer, Edward D. Adams, J. Kennedy Tod and Henry H. Jefferson Seligman.

Mr. Hanna said that he felt that he was addressing an important body of New York bankers and he spoke of the general work of the campaign. The present organization of the Republican party and also of the National Democratic party, he understood, would remain in the field to further the good work so auspiciously begun. Mr. Hanna said also that the new administration would begin its work without any pledges and wholly untrammelled in the selection of a cabinet, a statement which was heartily applauded.

Spiders' Eyesight.

How far away can a spider see a fly? After several years of ingenious experimenting Mr. and Mrs. Peckham, the naturalists, have concluded that the greatest average distance at which spiders are able to see objects distinctly is about one foot. Beyond that distance, then, we may assume that a fly caught in a spider's web would be safe from detection by its enemy if its movements and struggles to get away did not betray it. The same observers think that spiders have the senses of color and of smell, but feebly developed.--Youth's Companion.

Senator Carter Expects None at This Session.

SILVER MEN WON'T OBSTRUCT.

In the Next Session--If They Did They Would Force Tariff to the Front In the Next Campaign--Stand Taken by Senator Pettigrew.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.--Senator Carter of Montana, in an interview, said that he saw no prospect of any important legislation at this session of congress. He did not believe the Dingley bill could pass, and thought that the session would be devoted to the appropriation bills and sparring among the political parties for position. As to tariff legislation in the next congress, Senator Carter said that he did not believe the Democrats would obstruct, no matter what the silver Republicans might do.

In his opinion those who were claiming and believed that the hard times

THEY WANT RECIPROCITY.

The Canadians Hope For Such an Agreement on the Tariff.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.--The statement made in New York by Hon. W. S. Fielding, Canadian finance minister, that efforts will be made by the Canadian government to secure a treaty of reciprocity with the United States as soon as President-elect McKinley shall assume office at Washington, has awakened the greatest interest among business men in Montreal and throughout Canada.

The commercial interests of the Dominion, regardless of politics, are almost a unit in favor of a renewal of what is known as the Elgin reciprocity treaty of 1854, and it is believed that when the representatives of the Canadian government visit Washington next spring they will endeavor to secure reciprocal legislation along the lines of that treaty.

PETIGREW WON'T OBSTRUCT.

He Will Help Tariff Legislation, Not Aiding Truists.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 11.--Senator Pettigrew has opened the campaign of 1900 and addressed one of the largest audiences ever gathered in this city. It was announced as the beginning of the bimetallic fight two years hence.

The senator said that he would render McKinley every aid possible for him to demonstrate that the tariff was what ailed the country, but wanted to put himself on record by saying that he would resist every section of a tariff bill that provided for a tariff on any article controlled by a trust. This created a sensation and the demonstration that followed was tremendous.

WHAT THE FARMERS WANT.

Resolution Adopted by the Congress For International Bimetallicism.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.--The following resolution has been offered at the Farmers' National congress:

"Resolved--That the Farmers' National congress is in favor of the equal use of both gold and silver coin as money of ultimate redemption, and that we do request the incoming president of the United States to call a conference of nations that are willing for the use of both gold and silver as money, with the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver in a ratio to be agreed upon."

COXEY HAS A NEW SCHEME.

The Commonwealth General Ready For the Campaign in 1900.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 11.--J. S. Coxe of Commonwealth fame is on the ground floor with a new doctrine for 1890. It is a platform which declares for the demonetization of gold as well as silver, state ownership of all railroads, highways, waterways and telegraph and telephone lines; municipal ownership of all street car lines, waterworks, market houses, electric light and gas plants; employment of surplus labor in public work, woman suffrage, state control of liquor traffic and election of president by direct vote of the people.

Coxey has called a conference of all friends of the initiative and referendum and advocates of the above principles of government. He believes that national banks should loan money to the people at cost, and this principle, he says, will be incorporated in a platform to be adopted in the parlors of the Lindell hotel, St. Louis, Jan. 12, 1897. All who favor the principles above set forth are urged to attend the St. Louis convention.

WILL RAISE THE RATES.

Ohio Bituminous Coal Roads Hold a Meeting in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.--A meeting of the bituminous coal producing and carrying companies in the Ohio districts has been held at the Trunk Line association rooms, at which the following companies were represented by their presidents and managers:

Hocking Valley, Pennsylvania railroad, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Baltimore and Ohio, Columbus, Sandusky and Hocking, Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling and the Toledo and Ohio Central.

The meeting was entirely harmonious and it was generally agreed that the present rates for bituminous coal and transportation charges were ruinously low and to the great disadvantage of the producers, carriers and miners. In a general way the meeting favored an agreement as to coal prices and transportation rates to last over a period of three years. The details will be settled at a series of other conferences.

THE BIG RAILWAY SYNDICATE.

It Will Operate in New York as Well as European Cities.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 11.--It is definitely announced that the immense international street railway syndicate recently formed will operate in New York as well as in London, Paris and other European cities. Compressed air has been finally decided upon as the power to be used, that question having been an open one until recently.

A number of the directors of the Seaboard Tube company that will manufacture the reservoirs for the compressed air will be in Cleveland in a few days to look into the feasibility of building their immense new factory in this city.

By the way, didn't we hear something, a few weeks ago, about a man named Isaac R. Sherwood? Was he not a candidate for some office?

The Canton News Democrat makes such ridiculous indications for the next election that it is compelled to label each one to keep its readers from believing they are jokes.

No one is surprised at the announcement that Mrs. Malloy, the first woman to find a place in the electoral college, is from Ohio. She was born in Franklin county, and moved to Wyoming several years ago.

AN INJUSTICE.

The action of council last night in asking one per cent of the gross receipts of the proposed street railway, is observed by all enterprising citizens as nothing short of unjust. The company may not be able to make the line a success, and the demand for one per cent of every dollar taken in is, to say the least, an injustice which should not be placed upon the enterprising spirit which makes improvement possible. The demand is not made in other cities of similar size, and those who support the company declare there is no precedent demanding it. Council should protect the city, but that is no reason why it should enact laws to keep out enterprise. Council is to be commended for protecting the rights of the city, but it is to be condemned for placing an injustice upon any one, and this action in connection with the street railway is certainly an injustice.

EVERY LITTLE HELPS.

Much is being said concerning the tariff legislation of the new congress, and the speculation so freely indulged in may or may not become some part of a reality. The favorite prognostication turns toward the Dingley measure, and the idea prevails that this will take the place of the Wilson bill as soon after the first week of April as it can conveniently be arranged. If that be true, it will not be a return of the McKinley tariff, and the duties will not be in line with the schedules of the bill which brought such bountiful harvest to invested capital in the early days of the decade. Mr. Dingley never intended his law to do anything but provide sufficient revenue to do away with the Democratic deficit. It was not, in the sense we understand protection, a protective measure. The horizontal increase over the schedules of the Wilson bill would do little other than give more money to the government. Industries would be aided only a little, and there could be next to nothing in returning the rate of wages destroyed by Democracy. Pottery would get its share of the increase, but that share would be small. It would not begin to reach the cut of Wilson's committee. It might lend some aid in keeping back the tide of foreign importation, but it would not give the pottery industry that opportunity for which manufacturers and workmen have longed through so many weary months. As a revenue measure, the Dingley bill would probably be a success. As a protective tariff, it would be a miserable failure.

ONLY ONE CLAIM.

If there is a disposition on the part of certain Republican leaders to sacrifice any part of the party's principle to those men of other political faiths who aided to bring about the victory of last week, they should be made to understand that the fundamental principle of Republicanism is a protective and not a revenue tariff. The people placed the Republican party in power because the hard times were not the result of the theory upon which Mr. Bryan stood, but because their suffering was caused by the policy of low tariff for which the Democrats have always stood. It was the repeal of the Wilson law and the restoration of wages to the standard allowed by the McKinley bill which prompted the millions to cast their ballots for William McKinley. While they knew a Bryan triumph meant more hard times and more privation, they also knew a Republican avalanche would restore to them that which they lost when Grover Cleveland became president. We honor the sound money Democrats who forgot party and became patriots; but because they were good in one instance, is no reason why they should be bad in another. They have no claim upon the Republican party other than that the money of the country be maintained. When they broke away from the declaration of the Chicago convention and to all intents and purposes endorsed what the Republicans had done in St. Louis, they said nothing about recognition. They did not expect it then, they should not have it now. If they can forget their free trade fallacies they should be welcome in the Republican party; but their room is better than their policy of low wages and soup houses.

A Nation of Medicine Takers.

It is an accepted fact that the American people are the greatest users of medicines of one sort or another on the face of the earth. Imaginary ills make up a large part of man's earthly troubles. Some people need only to read the vivid description of some chronic disease, and they are at once victims to the complaint in question. Many patent medicine venders make use of this peculiarity and lead some people to believe that their tired feeling comes from their blood not being rich and red. Millions would be saved and our general health would be better if we would take medicine only when really needed and then get a remedy specially prepared for the disease with which we are suffering.

As an illustration, when you have sore throat, there can't be any imagination about it. Your throat hurts; probably is covered with white ulcerated spots, and you know you need a remedy. Use good judgment. Get a cure put up for this one purpose. There is such a remedy. Tonsiline is its name, and it is a wonder in its field. Being put up for this one class of diseases, it cures quickly, surely, and many times as if by magic. No family can afford to be without Tonsiline in the home, as it is a certain cure for Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Croup and Quinsy. Ask your neighbors who have used it. All druggists sell Tonsiline, 25 and 50 cents.

gates present from different parts of the United States and Canada.

General Master Workman Sovereign presided. Charles Wright of this city welcomed the delegates and introduced Mayor Warner, who delivered an address.

General Worthy Foreman M. J. Bishop of Boston replied to Mayor Warner and stated the objects of the order. T. B. McGuire of Amsterdam, a member of the executive board, delivered an address and Mrs. Ford of Rochester, the only woman delegate, also spoke, after which the meeting went into executive session.

The meeting throughout is strictly secret, nothing being given out except through the press committee appointed by the general master workman, but your representative was informed, from a very reliable source, that one of the most important subjects of deliberation would be the tariff, and that the present congress will be asked to take the duty off windowglass.

A BANQUET TO HANNA.

He Says McKinley Will Be Untrammelled In Selecting a Cabinet.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.--A luncheon in honor of Mark A. Hanna has been given in the banquet hall in the Equitable building. The host was Isaac M. Seligman, of the house of J. & W. Seligman, and the guests included a number of the most prominent business men and financiers in the city. More than 300 guests sat at the tables. Besides Mr. Hanna and Mr. Seligman, the following were present:

Ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt, Carl Schurz, Seth Low, Edward N. Gibbs, A. G. Paine, J. H. Rhodes, John A. Stewart, General Solomon Loeb, Jacob Schiff, Theodore Roosevelt, William Barbour, Edward E. Edward Simmons, Edward King, David G. Leggett, James Speyer, Edward D. Adams, J. Kennedy Tod and Henry H. Jefferson Seligman. Mr. Hanna said that he felt that he was addressing an important body of New York bankers and he spoke of the general work of the campaign. The present organization of the Republican party and also of the National Democratic party, he understood, would remain in the field to further the good work so auspiciously begun. Mr. Hanna said also that the new administration would begin its work without any pledges and wholly untrammelled in the selection of a cabinet, a statement which was heartily applauded.

Spiders' Eyesight.

How far away can a spider see a fly? After several years of ingenious experimenting Mr. and Mrs. Peckham, the naturalists, have concluded that the greatest average distance at which spiders are able to see objects distinctly is about one foot. Beyond that distance, then, we may assume that a fly caught in a spider's web would be safe from detection by its enemy if its movements and struggles to get away did not betray it. The same observers think that spiders have the senses of color and of smell, but feebly developed.--Youth's Companion.

TARIFF LEGISLATION.

Senator Carter Expects None at This Session.

SILVER MEN WON'T OBSTRUCT

In the Next Session--If They Did They Would Force Tariff to the Front in the Next Campaign--Stand Taken by Senator Pettigrew.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.--Senator Carter of Montana, in an interview, said that he saw no prospect of any important legislation at this session of congress. He did not believe the Dingley bill could pass, and thought that the session would be devoted to the appropriation bills and sparring among the political parties for position. As to tariff legislation in the next congress, Senator Carter said that he did not believe the Democrats would obstruct, no matter what the silver Republicans might do.

In his opinion those who were claiming and believed that the hard times

THEY WANT RECIPROCITY.

The Canadians Hope For Such an Agreement on the Tariff.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.--The statement made in New York by Hon. W. S. Fielding, Canadian finance minister, that efforts will be made by the Canadian government to secure a treaty of reciprocity with the United States as soon as President-elect McKinley shall assume office at Washington, has awakened the greatest interest among business men in Montreal and throughout Canada.

The commercial interests of the Dominion, regardless of politics, are almost a unit in favor of a renewal of what is known as the Elgin reciprocity treaty of 1854, and it is believed that when the representatives of the Canadian government visit Washington next spring they will endeavor to secure reciprocal legislation along the lines of that treaty.

PETIGREW WON'T OBSTRUCT.

He Will Help Tariff Legislation, Not Aiding Tariffs.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 11.--Senator Pettigrew has opened the campaign of 1900 and addressed one of the largest audiences ever gathered in this city. It was announced at the beginning of the bimetallic fight two years hence. The senator said that he would render McKinley every aid possible for him to demonstrate that the tariff was what ailed the country, but wanted to put himself on record by saying that he would resist every section of a tariff bill that provided for a tariff on any article controlled by a trust. This created a sensation and the demonstration that followed was tremendous.

KING OSCAR CHOSEN.

The Final Arbitrator of the Venezuelan Dispute.

OTHERS ARE TO BE SELECTED

by the Chief Justices of the United States and Great Britain—Terms of the Treaty Arranged by Secretary Olney and Ambassador Pauncefote.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The king of Sweden and Norway, Oscar II, has been chosen by treaty between the United States and Great Britain as the fifth and final arbitrator of the Venezuelan boundary question. The other arbitrators, four in number, are to be designated, two by the lord chief justice of England and two by the chief justice of the United States.

This is the final and most important feature of the treaty for the complete adjustment of the long pending Venezuela controversy, which was concluded in Washington, at the British embassy, Sir Julian Pauncefote representing her Britannic majesty and Secretary Olney the United States.

It was deemed best to make this choice rather than to leave it to the selection of the other four arbitrators. The latter are assured of being men of eminent judicial attainment, as their choice is left entirely to the judiciary of the respective countries.

The other essential features of the treaty is that 50 years actual possession is to constitute title. With this limitation as to the settled districts the entire sweep of Venezuelan boundary is placed in the hands of the court of arbitration. The treaty covers only Venezuela, and the question of general arbitration between the United States and Great Britain is left to future negotiations.

As a king seldom leaves his country, except on state visits to other sovereigns, it is not expected that King Oscar II. will go outside of Sweden for the meeting of the arbitrators and the court is likely to sit at Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, where King Oscar's palace and the halls of the Swedish riksdag are located.

The choice of King Oscar appears to have been the most fortunate one, as he is universally regarded as a man of great attainments, of judicial temperament and of eminent fairness. Among the monarchs of Europe he is probably the most popular, as he goes freely among the people and is thoroughly democratic in his ways.

England's agreement to settle the Venezuelan dispute by arbitration is a distinct victory for Venezuela, backed up by the United States.

Venezuela has asked arbitration for 10 years. Great Britain's reply always has been uniform—namely, that while arbitration was desired, yet the settled districts, which were regarded as "sovereign British soil," were not open to arbitration. According to the treaty negotiations, the entire Venezuela-Guiana boundary will be thrown open to arbitration, it remaining for Great Britain to show that certain portions have been occupied by her subjects so long, peacefully, uninterruptedly and publicly as to make a conclusive territorial presumption.

The country which, it is understood, this will open to arbitration embraces all of the vast tract west of the Essequibo river including the Orinoco river on both banks and at the mouth and the stretch of land on either side; also, the Guiana country, in which are located the gold fields, the most valuable resources of the country. East of the Essequibo river lies the British colony of Demerara, with its capital, Georgetown, and lesser settlements radiating westward. This portion east of the Essequibo is, from the Venezuelan standpoint, about the only territory in which the doctrine of prescription, or long continued possession, applies. There are scattered English settlements in the interior, and to them, it is said, it will be a question of fact before the arbitrators to determine whether the British occupancy has been open and notorious for a term of 50 years.

Among the diplomats it is felt that the efforts of the Venezuelan commission have not been in vain. It is regarded as the moral force which has helped toward the present result. Moreover, the commission has accumulated a mass of evidence bearing directly on the facts of the British occupancy, which is now the test of settlement. The fullness of this information gained by the commission leads to some general comment as to the probable choice of Justice Brewer or others of the commission as arbitrators, but this is purely speculative.

Mr. Frederick R. Condit, a member of the commission, said that it would be much better for the boundary to be determined by arbitration than by a decision of the commission. The report of the commission however it should be made, would be of much value in determining the matter in dispute.

The commission has issued the following:

The statements of Lord Salisbury as reported in the newspapers makes it probable that the boundary dispute now pending between Great Britain and

Venezuela will be settled by arbitration at an early day. Under these circumstances the commission, while continuing its deliberations in the preparation and orderly arrangement of many valuable maps, reports and documents which have been procured and used in the course of its labors, does not propose to formulate any decision for the present on the matters subject to its examination.

It will continue its session from time to time, but with the hope and expectation that a friendly and just settlement of the differences between the nations interested will make any final decision on its part unnecessary.

All arrangements have been completed, and all details of the arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain arranged. The final terms of the treaty of arbitration were arranged in this city Monday night. The terms were cabled to London and have been accepted. The treaty covers Venezuela only and does not include a general treaty of arbitration of all future disputes between the two great English-speaking nations. This treaty is to be arranged later by future negotiations. The Venezuelan arbitration commission will consist of five arbitrators, two to be named by the United States, two by Great Britain, and one to select the fifth arbitrator. Venezuela will not be directly represented on the commission.

The term of occupancy necessary to exempt British settlements in the disputed territory from arbitration is fixed at 50 years, according to additional correspondence on the subject which has just been discovered. In other words the British government has agreed to unrestricted arbitration of all the territory in dispute, with the period for the acquisition of title by prescription fixed by agreement of the parties in advance at 50 years.

Lord Salisbury's acceptance of this common law doctrine of prescription as applicable to an international dispute, it is said to be in line with the views laid down by international writers, who have differed only as to the length of occupancy essential to establish title. Most states have adopted from 10 to 20 years.

The original English rule was that the occupancy should be so long that "the memory of man runneth not to the contrary." The international writers have fixed 20, 30 and in some cases as high as 100 years as the period necessary to establish title. No international writer has placed the period below 20 years, so that if Ambassador Bayard is right in his belief that 20 years will constitute the test of British right, it indicates an disposition to yield the fullest extent.

It has been believed that Mr. St. John Boyle holds the action of the last caucus to be final and disputes the right to take new action. He said:

"So far as the nominee of the party for United States senator is concerned, I have never expressed the opinion that the party had not a right to call a new caucus. The members can do anything they please, and, as matters now stand, I am the nominee."

KING OSCAR CHOSEN.

The Final Arbitrator of the Venezuelan Dispute.

OTHERS ARE TO BE SELECTED

By the Chief Justices of the United States and Great Britain—Terms of the Treaty Arranged by Secretary Olney and Ambassador Pauncefote.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The king of Sweden and Norway, Oscar II, has been chosen by treaty between the United States and Great Britain as the fifth and final arbitrator of the Venezuelan boundary question. The other arbitrators, four in number, are to be designated, two by the lord chief justice of England and two by the chief justice of the United States.

This is the final and most important feature of the treaty for the complete adjustment of the long pending Venezuela controversy, which was concluded in Washington, at the British embassy, by Julian Pauncefote representing the British majesty and Secretary Olney of the United States.

It was deemed best to make this choice rather than to leave it to the selection of the other four arbitrators. The latter are assured of being men of eminent judicial attainment, as their choice is left entirely to the judiciary of the respective countries.

The other essential features of the treaty is that 50 years actual possession is to constitute title. With this limitation as to the settled districts the entire sweep of Venezuelan boundary is placed in the hands of the court of arbitration. The treaty covers only Venezuela, and the question of general arbitration between the United States and Great Britain is left to future negotiations.

As a king seldom leaves his country, except on state visits to other sovereigns, it is not expected that King Oscar II. will go outside of Sweden for the meeting of the arbitrators and the court is likely to sit at Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, where King Oscar's palace and the halls of the Swedish riksdag are located.

The choice of King Oscar appears to have been a most fortunate one, as he is universally regarded as a man of great attainments, of judicial temperament and of eminent fairness. Among the monarchs of Europe he is probably the most popular, as he goes freely among the people and is thoroughly democratic in his ways.

England's agreement to settle the Venezuelan dispute by arbitration is a distinct victory for Venezuela, backed up by the United States.

Venezuela has asked arbitration for 40 years. Great Britain's reply always has been uniform—namely, that while arbitration was desired, yet the settled districts, which were regarded as "sovereign British soil," were not open to arbitration.

According to the treaty, the entire Venezuelan boundary will be thrown open to arbitration, it remaining for Great Britain to show that certain portions have been occupied by her subjects so long, peacefully, uninterrupted and publicly as to make a conclusive territorial presumption.

The country which, it is understood, this will open to arbitration embraces all of the vast tract west of the Esiquibo river including the Orinoco river on both banks and at the mouth and the stretch of land on either side; also, the Parana country, in which are located the gold fields, the most valuable resources of the country. East of the Esiquibo river lies the British colony of Guayana, with its capital, Georgetown, and lesser settlements radiating westward. This portion east of the Esiquibo is from the Venezuelan standpoint, about the only territory in which the doctrine of prescription or long continued possession, applies. There are scattered English settlements in the interior, and to them, it is said, it will be a question of fact before the arbitrators to determine whether the British occupancy has been open and notorious for a term of 50 years.

Among the diplomats it is felt that the efforts of the Venezuelan commission have not been in vain. It is regarded as the moral force which has helped toward the present result. Moreover, the commission has accumulated a mass of evidence bearing directly on the facts of the British occupancy, which is now the test of settlement. The fullness of this information gained by the commission leads to some general opinion as to the probable choice of justice Brewer or others of the commission as arbitrators, but this is purely speculative.

Mr. Frederick R. Condit, a member of the commission, said that it would be much better for the boundary to be determined by arbitration than by a decision of the commission. The report of the commission however it should be made, would be of much value in determining the matter in dispute.

The commission has issued the following:

"The statements of Lord Salisbury as reported in the newspapers makes it probable that the boundary dispute now pending between Great Britain and Venezuela will be settled by arbitration at an early day. Under these circumstances the commission, while continuing its deliberations in the preparation and orderly arrangement of many valuable maps, reports and documents which have been procured and used in the course of its labors, does not propose to formulate any decision for the present on the matters subject to its examination. It will continue the session from time to time, but with the hope and expectation that a friendly and just settlement of the differences between the nations interested will make any final decision on its part unnecessary."

All arrangements have been completed, and all details of the arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain arranged. The final terms of the treaty of arbitration were arranged in this city Monday night. The terms were cable to London and have been accepted. The treaty covers Venezuela only and does not include a general treaty of arbitration of all future disputes between the two great English-speaking nations. This treaty is to be arranged later by future negotiations. The Venezuelan arbitration commission will consist of five arbitrators, two to be named by the United States, two by Great Britain, these four to select the fifth arbitrator. Venezuela will not be directly represented on the commission.

The term of occupancy necessary to exempt British settlements in the disputed territory from arbitration is fixed at 50 years, according to additional correspondence on the subject which has just been discovered. In other words the British government has agreed to unrestricted arbitration of all the territory in dispute, with the proviso that the acquisition of title by prescription, fixed by agreement of the parties in advance at 50 years.

Lord Salisbury's acceptance of this common law doctrine of prescription as applicable to an international dispute, it is said to be in line with the views laid down by international writers, who have differed only as to the length of occupancy essential to establish title. Most states have adopted from 10 to 20 years.

The original English rule was that the occupancy should be so long that "the memory of man runneth not to the contrary." The international writers have fixed 20, 30 and in some cases as high as 100 years as the period necessary to establish title. No international writer has placed the period below 20 years, so that if Ambassador Bayard is right in his belief that 30 years will constitute the test of British right, it indicates an indisposition to yield the fullest extent.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The United States ambassador, Mr. Thomas F. Bayard, in an interview with her representative, expressed warm appreciation of the cordiality of his reception at the lord mayor's banquet, and incidentally expressed the opinion that the United States law of 20 years' possession will prevail in the case of the settlers in Venezuelan disputed districts.

PINGREE AT CANTON.

Major McKinley's Great Devotion to His Sick Wife.

CANTON, O., Nov. 11.—Governor-elect Pingree of Michigan, accompanied by Colonel John Atkinson of Detroit, an elector and representative-elect, has spent two hours with President-elect McKinley. Mr. Pingree said the tariff question was the issue upon which the Republicans carried Michigan. When asked if Michigan had any candidate for cabinet positions Colonel Atkinson winked one eye at the reporter and the other at Mr. Pingree when he replied that Michigan had a great many people in her borders.

It is now expected that Major McKinley will leave with his wife for Cleveland on Friday, if her health permits. She has not gained in strength as rapidly as was hoped.

Her devoted and ever watchful husband makes 100 trips a day across the hall to see to her comfort and welfare. No matter who the callers be, nothing is allowed to prevent his frequent presence at the side of Mrs. McKinley. He also finds time to call on his mother, nearly a mile away, every day, and the charming old lady, 87 years old, makes frequent trips in her horse-drawn carriage to the home of her son.

Major McKinley is in robust health. He went to the train and chatted with the Chicago reporters on their way home, who had been dined by Chairman Hanna in New York.

It is seldom so heavy a snow falls thus early in the season and the preceding rains with the heavy snow cause rejoicing among the farmers over the prospective big crops of next year assured by the unusually moist season. Business interests generally rejoice, for lumbering will be more active and business as a whole improve with heavier winters.

WILL BEAT CARLISLE.

If Necessary Kentucky Silver Democrats Will Support a Republican.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 11.—An interview with Mr. St. John Boyle, the Republican United States senatorial nominee, makes it practically certain that a new caucus will be held prior to the extra session of the state assembly. It has been believed that Mr. St. John Boyle holds the action of the last caucus to be final and disputes the right to take new action. He said:

"So far as the nominee of the party for United States senator is concerned, I have never expressed the opinion that the party had not a right to call a new caucus. The members can do anything they please, and as matters now stand, I am the nominee."

Judge W. H. Holt of Frankfort will be one of the most formidable aspirants for the honor. Governor Bradley would like to be elected, but several Republican members, including Representative Lyons of Campbell county, are strongly opposed to him, and some have said they would not vote for him under any circumstances.

Now that Dr. Godfrey Hunter is defeated for congress, he may again become a candidate. In an interview, he declined to say that he will not. Nearly all the Louisville members are for him. Congressman Walter Evans of this city may also be a formidable candidate. He has no enemies among the members and is in a district that would be sure to elect a Republican successor to congress.

Your correspondent has been told by two leading silver Democratic members of the legislature that if the sound-money Democrats and Republicans tried to elect Carlisle, the silver members would throw their votes to Dr. Hunter, in the hope of stampeding enough Republicans to elect Hunter and thus defeat Carlisle. The silver members who told this are in earnest, and say the plan has already been agreed on.

Archduke John of Austria Never Expected to Return.

ST. GALL, Switzerland, Nov. 11.—A cantonal court has ordered the Bank of St. Gall to hand over to the relatives of the wife of the long missing Archduke John Nepomuk Saluator of Austria 1,000,000 francs, deposited by the latter prior to his departure for South America.

It was in 1889 that this archduke, who was the youngest son of the Grand Duke Leopold II of Tuscany, renounced his rank and all his Austrian titles owing to an irreconcilable quarrel with the late Field Marshal Archduke Albert. Having renounced his rank he went abroad under the name of Johann Orth, and was last heard of in South America, since which time he has completely disappeared from public knowledge. This proves that he is never expected to return.

Furnaces Once More Aglow.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—The furnaces of the glass works on Seventh and Townsend streets, which have been resting in idleness for a long time are once more aglow.

The Iowa on Trial.

SOON TO BE SAILORS

We Will Have a Company of the Naval Militia.

A MEETING FOR ORGANIZATION

Has Been Called For One Week From Tonight at City Hall—Stenbenville Has Abandoned the Plan and East Liverpool Takes Its Place.

The movement to establish in this city a branch of the naval militia has reached that point where the projectors believe they are justified in forming an organization, and a meeting with that end in view has been called for one week from tonight.

The last general assembly passed an act authorizing the formation and providing for the maintenance of a state naval militia, and the next congress is expected to appropriate funds for all organized divisions. Anticipating this move, organizations are already being perfected throughout the state. Cleveland is moving with enthusiasm, Toledo has its company formed, and the boys of Sandusky are drilling. Stenbenville talked about a company a year ago, but nothing came of it, and it is understood the plan has been abandoned. This leaves the valley without representation, unless the talk in Cincinnati and Ironton will amount to something. The arms and other equipment will be provided by the state, and the federal government is expected to provide for the outfitting each summer.

George Simms and Charles Knowles have interested themselves in the matter, and after correspondence with the head of the movement in Cleveland have determined to organize a company here and have it in readiness for the appropriation when it comes next year. Eighty men are required to make a command under the law, and the ranks must be kept filled. The meeting to be held at city hall, Nov. 18, will pass through the preliminary steps of organization.

TAKEN ON A TELEGRAM.

Matt Friend Was Arrested by Chief Johnson this afternoon, and locked up at city hall. The arrest was made on the strength of a telegram from R. Barnett, marshal of Barbourton, and no explanation was given. Friend will be held until the officer arrives.

Friend was at one time among the best known motormen of the street railway, but a few months ago he left his wife in East End and disappeared. He went to Akron, and from there soon found his way to Barbourton. He returned here a week ago. Friend said at city hall that he was arrested for a board bill he neglected to pay in Barbourton.

A SENSELESS STORY.

The George Building Is as Safe as the Safest.

Some individual with an object which cannot be fathomed has set afloat the story that the George building is unsafe, and it will not be right to hold the lectures of the association course in that place. The story is without the slightest foundation. Plans for remodeling the structure provide for the best possible arrangement, and safety was the first thing considered. The contractors and architects who were consulted unite in saying the building is as safe as any. The first lecture will be given in the First M. E. church, not because the George building is not safe, but because it will not be ready for occupancy at that time.

TO IMPROVE THE RIVER.

The Association Is Doing a Lot of Talking In Pittsburg.

The Ohio River Improvement association wound up the business of the fall meeting at Pittsburg today with a ride on the Monongahela. The association passed resolutions favoring the protection of harbor lines, a ship canal, surveys to prevent encroachments on harbors, and urging congress to appoint an Ohio river commission. The next meeting will be held at Evansville, Ind., where much interest has always been shown in the improvement of the river. Congressman Dovenor and Governor McCorkle, of West Virginia, were conspicuous figures at the meeting.

Attacked the Horses.

Veterinary surgeons say that a mild disease has become epidemic among the horses of the city. Many horses are afflicted, but none are in danger. It seems to be new, and has not yet been located.

Typhoid Fever.

A daughter of Robert McGillivray, Second street, is suffering from an attack of typhoid fever.

A son of Thomas Beebout, College street, is afflicted with the same disease.

POSITIVELY INSULTING.

The Hint Given to a Seventh Daughter of a Seventh Daughter.

A lawyer who was engaged in settling up the affairs of an estate was somewhat worried over the loss of certain letters and papers.

The deceased had been a careless person, and he had mislaid several documents that were of importance to his heirs. Having been called away from this earth on a hasty summons, he had not given the lawyer any instructions beforehand.

The lawyer had a helpful friend who believed in clairvoyance and second sight. This friend went to a woman who was the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, and who could read the stars at sight, and told her of the lawyer's search for the papers.

The clairvoyant or fortune teller, or whatever she may have been, went to see the lawyer.

The lawyer was skeptical. I really believe I can find these papers for you," said she. "If you care to employ me I shall at least endeavor to find them. A few weeks ago I found a lost will for a family on the north side."

"You really think you can find these papers?"

"I am quite sure of it."

"You go ahead and find them, and I'll pay you liberally."

"But I must receive every assistance from you and the relatives of the departed. I must be taken to his home and put in sympathy with his former surroundings."

"Not much. I'll not go to all that trouble. I think you're a fraud."

The woman gave him a stony stare and swept out of the room.

About five minutes later she re-entered the office. She appeared to be agitated. "Excuse me for coming back," she said, "but did I leave a small black bag in here? I wouldn't lose it for the world."

"I haven't seen it. You don't remember where you left it?"

"I can't imagine."

"That hadn't ought to worry you. If you can find papers that have been missing six months, you hadn't ought to have any difficulty in finding a handbag that was lost ten minutes ago."

"You are positively insulting," said the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter, and then she left him forever.

BUYING SHEEP.

Farmers are Preparing For the Tariff on Wool.

A prominent farmer, living north of the city, informed a reporter today that farmers who have within the past few years sold their sheep are again in the market for favorite breeds. The prospect of a tariff on wool had, he said, done much to stimulate the price, and he believed it would only be a short time until flocks as large as those of four years ago were seen on the hills of the county. The gentlemen thought many farmers would defer their purchases until spring, but some would buy at once.

MAJOR M'KINLEY COMING.

But He Will Not Be Here During Next Week.

It was rumored in the city today that Major and Mrs. McKinley would be here next week to spend a few days at the residence of Colonel Taylor. The story was widely circulated, but the News Review learned that the date is premature. The next president and his estimable wife will visit in the city before going to Washington, but the time has not yet been settled. They go the latter part of the week for a few days with friends in Cleveland.

Turkey Supper.

The ladies of the Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church will give a royal turkey supper in the church kitchen on Friday night, Nov. 13. There will also be a very enjoyable entertainment given in the lecture room after supper. The admission will be but 10 cents, with supper at 25 cents. The ladies of this church have acquired an enviable reputation for the excellent repasts they serve to patrons, and we predict that the kitchen will be crowded to overflowing on Friday night. Take your ladies and go early.

Orders to Burn.

"We have orders to burn at our place," said a prominent manufacturer today, and that seems to be the condition in every pottery in town. Orders are coming from all directions, and the prediction that trade would improve is being proved.

Makes Music.

During the noon hour a fiddler, who is employed at the new end, discourses sweet music from an harmonica. Her shopmates are attracted by her accomplishment, and there is always a large number of them present.

A Lively Bill.

Isaac Walters commenced action this morning against Samuel Groves for $9.00, claimed due for livery hire. The case will be heard Saturday afternoon by Squire Manley.

There will be no invitations issued for the free song recital given by Professor Harper in the First U. P. church, Thursday evening, as formerly. All are invited.

More Business.

The directors of the Young Men's Christian association have much business to transact in connection with the new quarters, and a meeting will be held this evening.

NOT MADE TO ORDER.

"She whom I love must be quite small," I said.

"I like not your tall women—quite petite, With eyes that must perforce be raised to mine."

And small, white hands and little, dancing feet."

But when we met, love, in that hour divine Your honest eyes looked level into mine."

"She must be gentle—woman's chiefest charm; Meek and submissive to my lightest frown."

But now my heart is lying at your feet. Ah, how imperiously you smiled it down! And I, your willing slave from day to day, Live but to love, to honor, to obey."

"She must be fair."

But in your rounded cheek The red and brown do meet in sweetest blend."

The twilight dusk is in your heavy hair, And long black lashes added beauty lend To your brown eyes, where darkly written lie Love's answers in love's shy obscurity."

—Pearson's Weekly.

ALLIGATOR SENSE.

They Don't Have Much Before They Are One Hundred Years Old.

"Do you know," said Colonel Ben Gason, leaning back in his chair, "that alligators are the most affectionate creatures on earth? It's a fact. And the sense they have! They've got more sense than a dog. How do I know? Haven't I educated 'em? Ain't there an alligator 110 years old in Des Allemand bayou that would work his tail to the bone for me if I asked him to? Say, you make me tired! I asked him laughing at? You get a gallon of molasses and a long necked bottle and I'll show you how to tame alligators. It's the easiest thing on earth. They're so affectionate."

"On June 23, 1885, I went to Des Allemand bayou fishing. A negro named Baptiste Fortier had just caught an alligator 100 years old. I could tell by the rings around him. You can't train a young alligator. That's funny, ain't it? I asked Baptiste to sell him to me. I paid him $4.95, and Jim, that's the alligator's name, was mine. I put a chain around his neck. Then I got me a long necked bottle, filled it with molasses and walked up to him. He opened his jaws to nab me. That was my chance. I shoved the neck of the bottle in his mouth, just back of his ears, where an alligator has no teeth. I tilted the bottle up. Jim tasted the molasses and began wagging his tail. He broke Baptiste's leg, but that was an accident. He was as gentle as a setter dog from the minute he tasted the molasses. I taught him a lot of pretty tricks—how to catch flies, how to stand on his tail, how to chew tobacco. Finally I harnessed him up to a boat. He looked around at me to see what I wanted. I reached over the side of the boat and pushed him a little. Then he understood. Off he went. When I pulled on the rope I had around his neck, he was nonplused for a minute, but he soon caught on, and now when I go to Des Allemand's I never have to hire anybody to paddle my canoe. Jim attends to carrying me anywhere I want to go."

"Say, do you know Jim is as glad to see me whenever I pass that way as if he was a relative of mine. What's that? Of course it's the truth. Ask Baptiste. He takes care of Jim for me while I am in New Orleans."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Moose In New Brunswick.

The future of the moose, oldest and noblest of the game animals on this continent, is a matter that has interested a good many people. Mr. Braithwaite, who has lived among these animals all his life, says there is no danger of their diminution in New Brunswick. They shed their antlers before the snow comes deep in winter, and the sportsman who end-avors to carry away a hornless moose is always roughly dealt with by the magistrates down in the settlements. The only relentless enemy of the moose is the lumberman, who in the depth of winter can make good use of the meat. But in the region which is the subject of this article there is little lumber, and so there are few lumbermen. The degenerate Indians of the villages seldom trouble themselves to hunt, and the few moose killed by hunters are as nothing compared with the young ones destroyed by the bears. Bruin gets trapped because his coat will average $20 to his captor. There are no wolves in this wilderness, so the prospects for the moose are getting better instead of worse. And if there are thousands of moose, there are tens of thousands of caribou.—Frederick Irland in Scribner's.

The Robin and the Caterpillar.

The robin hops along in the furrow and picks up worms as the farmer plows, which it eats itself or carries to its nest as food for the young robins. The robin prefers smooth coated worms, such as the common earthworm, but if such food is scarce it does not disdain the fuzzy caterpillar. It is an evil day for the caterpillar when a robin strikes it. The robin picks it up and shakes it, and it shakes it until it shakes the spines out of it—the fur, as the children call the caterpillar's fuzzy coating—leaving the caterpillar bare in patches and sometimes all over and shaken all out of shape. Then the robin eats it or carries it off to feed its young.—New York Sun.

The Brave Man.

"Do I understand you to say," queried the barrister, looking hard at the principal witness, "that upon hearing a noise in the hall you rose quickly, lit a candle and went to the head of the stairs—that a burglar was at the foot of the stairs, and you did not see him? Are you blind?"

"Must I tell the truth?" stammered the witness, blushing to the roots of his hair.

"The whole truth," was the stern reply.

"Then," replied the witness, brushing aside his damp, clinging locks and wiping the perspiration from his clammy brow, "my wife was in front of me."—Pearson's Weekly.

Shirts of chain armor, which cost about $500, are now worn by more than one distinguished person on the continent.

WHICH DID SHE MEAN

HOW MEMBERS OF A RURAL PARTY GOT TO MORALIZING.

Elihu Undertook to Show the Hired Man and Other Members of His Family How Easy It Is to Rob the Unscrupulous. The Result Wasn't Just as He Calculated.

It was a truly rural party that waited in harrowing suspense for the train which was to leave in two or three hours. They had been to a fair, and in their periods of comparative repose passed the time recounting their experiences and observations.

"I can't be 'pein anxious," the old gentleman said apologetically to a gate tender. "Ye see, there ain't nobody to home, an somebody up in our country to develop a ter'ble appetite for Leghorn chickens, which is my specialty. I don't like the idee of stayin here overnight, dodgin bunko steers, when we erter be chasin chicken thieves."

"Haven't you got a hired man on the place?"

"We brought 'im along. He was willin to pay his own way, an ez he'd of quit of I hed told 'im he'd gotter stay. I thort it 'ud save trouble in the end."

"Ye sired," chimed in the hired man, who came up just at that point in the conversation. "I had to move with the percession. An I wouldn't of missed seein what I did for nothin. I guess I got through with more sights than anybody else in the hull outfit."

"I reckon ye didn't come across any more that was new an startin than the rest of us," replied the old gentleman in a blasé tone of toleration. "I know of one thing the ye didn't see, fur mother says she had her eye on ye all the time. Hev ye got any money?"

"Two dollar an sixty cents," was the self satisfied response.

"Then ye didn't see what I'm talkin about. Ye run over to thet store an buy 3 cents' wuth of English walnuts an I'll show it to ye. I'll be over whur mother an Zeb is, 'cause it'll interest them too."

When the hired man came back from his errand, the old gentleman was saying to his wife: "I was out fur experience, an ye can't git experience without it cootin a little somethin. I learnt a new game, an I want Zeb an the hired man ter know about it, so's ter put 'em on their guard again the wickedness of this here world. All ye need is some walnut shells an a paper wad."

The members of his household followed him to the window ledge, and after a few preliminary passes to loosen up his muscles for feats of legerdemain, he paused to remark:

"Now, ye'll understand, of course, thet this here ain't no lesson in gambolin. I jes' wanter show ye how it's done. When ye go ter town, ye'll know jes' ez much about it ez them sharpers does an be on yer guard. It's a game whur the man ez does the guessin ain't got no show whutsoever."

He manipulated the shells and the paper wad in imitation of the man he had seen at the fair, and stepping back said:

"Course, I don't want ye ter bet nothin, 'cause that 'ud be jes' like robbin yer. But it won't do no harm fur ye ter make a guess, so's ter show ye how the dag-on-ed swindle operates."

"I'll bet ye my new knife agin that buckhorn handled one of yer'n thet I kin pick out the shell ez hez the paper wad under it," remarked the hired man.

"I wouldn't let ye do it. Don't ye onderstan' thet this is a skin game I'm a-showin ye?"

"I don't keer nothin 'bout that. I've got that ther paper wad located an ye da'sn't bet thet I ain't."

"I da'sn't, da'sn't I? I don't like ter take no advantage of ye, but ye're a man growed an responsible fur yer own acks. Put up yer knife."

The stakes were laid on the window ledge, and the hired man promptly selected the right shell.

"By hokey," exclaimed the old gentleman, "ye've guessed it! It must 'a been by a miracle."

He tried it again, and this time not only the hired man, but Zeb and the old lady, risked all their available small change. Again the amateur thimble rigger juggled the shells, and with the same result.

"Better own up an quit, father," suggested Zeb.

"I won't do nothin of the kind," was the reply.

In the course of time he issued promissory notes for a saddle blanket, a pair of boots, six pearl collar buttons, a calico dress, a pair of bearskin gloves, seven plugs of tobacco and $4.50. But he was not discouraged. He was preparing for another shuffle of the walnut shells, when his wife exclaimed:

"Elihu, ain't it purty near train time?"

There was a simultaneous rush for the gate. Their train had been gone nearly 15 minutes.

"Waal," said the old gentleman, "it's disapp'intin ter hev ter set here tell the nex' one goes, but we've had the benefit of the exposit, anyhow. Ye kin allus dror a moral from most anything that happens. It all goes ter show thet there ain't any way of bein re'ly safe in games of chance, no matter which side ye're on."

"Yes," said Zeb, "it all come ter pass 'long of hev ter kill time in this here place."

"Whur's the hired man?"

"He told me thet, ez it would be a good while tell the train went, he reckoned he'd take some of his wuinin's an paint the town a little bit."

The old lady passed around some red apples and remarked:

"To my way of thinkin, there's another eternal truth thet this afternoon hez demonstrated."

"What is it, Mirandy?"

"A fool an his money are soon parted."

And her husband never took the trouble to inquire whether she meant him or the hired man.—Washington Star.

"Especially chocolate nougat," declared the young woman in white. "It is just too sweet for anything."

"Where did you get them? Wait! Charley or Bob?"

"It was Charley," replied the girl with the box in her hand. "He always has the nicest candy."

"But you like Bob best?"

"Agnes, dear, you are entirely too inquisitive."

"You mustn't get married if you like candy."

A SENSELESS STORY.

The George Building Is as Safe as the Safest.

Some individual with an object which cannot be fathomed has set afloat the story that the George building is unsafe, and it will not be right to hold the lectures of the association course in that place. The story is without the slightest foundation. Plans for remodeling the structure provide for the best possible arrangement, and safety was the first thing considered. The contractors and architects who were consulted unite in saying the building is as safe as any. The first lecture will be given in the First M. E. church, not because the George building is not safe, but because it will not be ready for occupancy at that time.

TO IMPROVE THE RIVER.

The Association Is Doing a Lot of Talking in Pittsburg.

The Ohio River Improvement association wound up the business of the fall meeting at Pittsburg today with a ride on the Monongahela. The association passed resolutions favoring the protection of harbor lines, a ship canal, surveys to prevent encroachments on harbors, and urging congress to appoint an Ohio river commission. The next meeting will be held at Evansville, Ind., where much interest has always been shown in the improvement of the river. Congressmen Dovenor and Governor McCorkle, of West Virginia, were conspicuous figures at the meeting.

Attacked the Horses.

Veterinary surgeons say that a mild disease has become epidemic among the horses of the city. Many horses are afflicted, but none are in danger. It seems to be new, and has not yet been located.

Typhoid Fever.

A daughter of Robert McGillivray, Second street, is suffering from an attack of typhoid fever.

A son of Thomas Beebout, College street, is afflicted with the same disease.

POSITIVELY INSULTING.

The Hint Given to a Seventh Daughter of a Seventh Daughter.

A lawyer who was engaged in settling up the affairs of an estate was somewhat worried over the loss of certain letters and papers.

The deceased had been a careless person, and he had mislaid several documents that were of importance to his heirs. Having been called away from this earth on a hasty summons, he had not given the lawyer any instructions beforehand.

The lawyer had a helpful friend who believed in clairvoyance and second sight. This friend went to a woman who was the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, and who could read the stars at sight, and told her of the lawyer's search for the papers.

The clairvoyant or fortune teller, or whatever she may have been, went to see the lawyer.

The lawyer was skeptical. I really believe I can find these papers for you," said she. "If you care to employ me I shall at least endeavor to find them. A few weeks ago I found a lost will for a family on the north side."

"You really think you can find these papers?"

"I am quite sure of it."

"You go ahead and find them, and I'll pay you liberally."

"But I must receive every assistance from you and the relatives of the departed. I must be taken to his home and put in sympathy with his former surroundings."

"Not much. I'll not go to all that trouble. I think you're a fraud."

The woman gave him a stony stare and swept out of the room.

About five minutes later she re-entered the office. She appeared to be agitated. "Excuse me for coming back," she said, "but did I leave a small black bag in here? I wouldn't lose it for the world."

"I haven't seen it. You don't remember where you left it?"

"I can't imagine."

"That hadn't ought to worry you. If you can find papers that have been missing six months, you hadn't ought to have any difficulty in finding a handbag that was lost ten minutes ago."

"You are positively insulting," said the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter, and then she left him forever.

BUYING SHEEP.

Farmers are Preparing For the Tariff on Wool.

A prominent farmer, living north of the city, informed a reporter today that farmers who have within the past few years sold their sheep are again in the market for favorite breeds. The prospect of a tariff on wool had, he said, done much to stimulate the price, and he believed it would only be a short time until flocks as large as those of four years ago were seen on the hills of the county. The gentlemen thought many farmers would defer their purchases until spring, but some would buy at once.

MAJOR M'KINLEY COMING.

But He Will Not Be Here During Next Week.

It was rumored in the city today that Major and Mrs. McKinley would be here next week to spend a few days at the residence of Colonel Taylor. The story was widely circulated, but the News Review learned that the date is premature. The next president and his estimable wife will visit in the city before going to Washington, but the time has not yet been settled. They go the latter part of the week for a few days with friends in Cleveland.

Turkey Supper.

The ladies of the Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church will give a royal turkey supper in the church kitchen on Friday night, Nov. 13. There will also be a very enjoyable entertainment given in the lecture room after supper. The admission will be but 10 cents, with supper at 25 cents. The ladies of this church have acquired an enviable reputation for the excellent repasts they serve to patrons, and we predict that the kitchen will be crowded to overflowing on Friday night. Take your ladies and go early.

Orders to Burn.

"We have orders to burn at our place," said a prominent manufacturer today, and that seems to be the condition in every pottery in town. Orders are coming from all directions, and the prediction that trade would improve is being proved.

There will be no invitations issued for the free song recital given by Professor Harper in the First U. P. church, Thursday evening, as formerly.

More Business.

The directors of the Young Men's Christian association have much business to transact in connection with the new quarters, and a meeting will be held this evening.

NOT MADE TO ORDER.

"She whom I love must be quite small," I said. "I like not your tall women—quite petite. With eyes that must perforce be raised to mine. And small, white hands and little, dancing feet."

But when we met, love, in that hour divine Your honest eyes looked level into mine. "She must be gentle—woman's chiefest charm; Meek and submissive to my lightest frown." But now my heart is lying at your feet. Ah, how imperiously you smiled it down! And I, your willing slave from day to day, Live but to love, to honor, to obey.

"She must be fair." But in your rounded cheek The red and brown do meet in sweetest blend. The twilight dusk is in your heavy hair, And long black lashes added beauty lend To your brown eyes, where darkly written lie Love's answers in love's shy obscurity. —Pearson's Weekly.

ALLIGATOR SENSE.

They Don't Have Much Before They Are One Hundred Years Old.

"Do you know," said Colonel Ben Gason, leaning back in his chair, "that alligators are the most affectionate creatures on earth? It's a fact. And the sense they have! They've got more sense than a dog. How do I know? Haven't I educated 'em? Ain't there an alligator 110 years old in Des Allemand bayou that would work his tail to the bone for me if I asked him to? Say, you make me tired! What are you laughing at? You get a gallon of molasses and a long necked bottle and I'll show you how to tame alligators. It's the easiest thing on earth. They're so affectionate."

"On June 23, 1885, I went to Des Allemand bayou fishing. A negro named Baptiste Fortier had just caught an alligator 100 years old. I could tell by the rings around him. You can't train a young alligator. That's funny, ain't it? I asked Baptiste to sell him to me. I paid him $4.95, and Jim, that's the alligator's name, was mine. I put a chain around his neck. Then I got me a long necked bottle, filled it with molasses and walked up to him. He opened his jaws to nab me. That was my chance. I shoved the neck of the bottle in his mouth, just back of his ears, where an alligator has no teeth. I tilted the bottle up. Jim tasted the molasses and began wagging his tail. He broke Baptiste's leg, but that was an accident. He was as gentle as a setter dog from the minute he tasted the molasses. I taught him a lot of pretty tricks—how to catch flies, how to stand on his tail, how to chew tobacco. Finally I harnessed him up to a boat. He looked around at me to see what I wanted. I reached over the side of the boat and pushed him a little. Then he understood. Off he went. When I pulled on the rope I had around his neck, he was nonplused for a minute, but he soon caught on, and now when I go to Des Allemand's I never have to hire anybody to paddle my canoe. Jim attends to carrying me anywhere I want to go."

"Say, do you know Jim is as glad to see me whenever I pass that way as if he was a relative of mine. What's that? Of course it's the truth. Ask Baptiste. He takes care of Jim for me while I am in New Orleans." —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Moose in New Brunswick.

The future of the moose, oldest and noblest of the game animals on this continent, is a matter that has interested a good many people. Mr. Braithwaite, who has lived among these animals all his life, says there is no danger of their diminution in New Brunswick. They shed their antlers before the snow comes deep in winter, and the sportsman who end-avours to carry away a hornless moose is always roughly dealt with by the magistrates down in the settlements. The only relentless enemy of the moose is the lumberman, who in the depth of winter can make good use of the meat. But in the region which is the subject of this article there is little lumber, and so there are few lumbermen. The degenerate Indians of the villages seldom trouble themselves to hunt, and the few moose killed by hunters are as nothing compared with the young ones destroyed by the bears. Bruin gets trapped because his coat will average $20 to his captor. There are no wolves in this wilderness, so the prospects for the moose are getting better instead of worse. And if there are thousands of moose, there are tens of thousands of caribou.—Frederick Ireland in Scribner's.

The Robin and the Caterpillar.

The robin hops along in the furrow and picks up worms as the farmer plows, which it eats itself or carries to its nest as food for the young robins. The robin prefers smooth coated worms, such as the common earthworm, but if such food is scarce it does not disdain the fuzzy caterpillar. It is an evil day for the caterpillar when a robin strikes it. The robin picks it up and shakes it and shakes it until it shakes the spines out of it—the fur, as the children call the caterpillar's fuzzy coating—leaving the caterpillar bare in patches and sometimes all over and shaken all out of shape. Then the robin eats it or carries it off to feed its young.—New York Sun.

The Brave Man.

"Do I understand you to say," queried the barrister, looking hard at the principal witness, "that upon hearing a noise in the hall you rose quickly, lit a candle and went to the head of the stairs—that a burglar was at the foot of the stairs, and you did not see him? Are you blind?"

"Must I tell the truth?" stammered the witness, blushing to the roots of his hair.

"The whole truth," was the stern reply.

"Then," replied the witness, brushing aside his damp, clinging locks and wiping the perspiration from his clammy brow, "my wife was in front of me." —Pearson's Weekly.

Shirts of chain armor, which cost about $500, are now worn by more than one distinguished person on the continent.

WHICH DID SHE MEAN

HOW MEMBERS OF A RURAL PARTY GOT TO MORALIZING.

Elihu Undertook to Show the Hired Man and Other Members of His Family How Easy It Is to Rob the Unphilosophical. The Result Wasn't Just as He Calculated.

It was a truly rural party that waited in harrowing suspense for the train which was to leave in two or three hours. They had been to a fair, and in their periods of comparative repose passed the time recounting their experiences and observations.

"I can't help being anxious," the old gentleman said apologetically to a gate tender. "Ye see, there ain't nobody to home, an somebody up in our country is developin a terrible appetite for Leghorn chickens, which is my specialty. I don't like the idee of stayin here overnight, dodgin bunko steers, when we erter be chasin chicken thieves."

"Haven't you got a hired man on the place?"

"We brought 'im along. He was willin to pay his own way, an ez he'd of quit if I hed told 'im he'd gotter stay, I thort it 'ud save trouble in the end."

"Yes sircs," chimed in the hired man, who came up just at that point in the conversation. "I had to move weth the percession. An I wouldn't of missed seein what I did fur nothin. I guess I got through weth more sights than anybody else in the hull outfit."

"I reckon ye didn't come across any more that was new an startlin than some of the rest of us," replied the old gentleman in a blase tone of toleration. "I know of one thing that ye didn't see, fur mother says she had her eye on ye all the time. Hev ye got any money?"

"Two dollar an sixty cents," was the self satisfied response.

"Then ye didn't see what I'm talkin about. Ye run over to thet store an buy 3 cents' wuth of English walnuts an I'll show it to ye. I'll be over whur mother an Zeb is, 'cause it'll interest them too."

When the hired man came back from his errand, the old gentleman was saying to his wife: "I was out fur experience, an ye can't git experience without its costin a liddle somethin. I learnt a new game, an I want Zeb an the hired man ter know about it, so's ter put 'em on their guard again the wickedness of this here world. All ye need is some walnut shells an a paper wad."

The members of his household followed him to the window ledge, and, after a few preliminary passes to loosen up his muscles for feats of legerdemain, he paused to remark:

"Now, ye'll understand, of course, thet this here ain't no lesson in gambolin. I jes' wanter show ye how it's done. When ye go ter town, ye'll know jes' ez much about it ez them sharpers does an be on yer guard. It's a game whur the man ez does the guessin ain't got no show whutsoever."

He manipulated the shells and the paper wad in imitation of the man he had seen at the fair, and stepping back said:

"Course, I don't want ye ter bet nothin, 'cause that 'ud be jes' like robbin yer. But it won't do no harm fur ye ter make a guess, so's ter show ye how the dag-on-ed swindle operates."

"I'll bet ye my new knife agin that I kin pick out the shell ez hez the paper wad under it," remarked the hired man.

"I wouldn't let ye do it. Don't ye onderstan' thet this is a skin game I'm a-shovin ye?"

"I don't keer nothin 'bout that. I've got that thet paper wad located an ye da'sn't bet thet I ain't."

"I da'sn't, I da'sn't? I don't like ter take no advantage of ye, but ye're a man growed an responsible fur yer own acks. Put up yer knife."

The stakes were laid on the window ledge, and the hired man promptly selected the right shell.

"By hokey," exclaimed the old gentleman, "ye've guessed it! It must 'a been by a miracle."

He tried it again, and this time not only the hired man, but Zeb and the old lady, risked all their available small change. Again the amateur thimble rigger juggled the shells, and with the same result.

"Better own up an quit, father," suggested Zeb.

"I won't do nothin of the kind," was the reply.

In the course of time he issued promissory notes for a saddle blanket, a pair of boots, six pearl collar buttons, a calico dress, a pair of bearskin gloves, seven pails of tobacco and $4.50. But he was not discouraged. He was preparing for another shuffle of the walnut shells, when his wife exclaimed:

"Elihu, ain't it purty near train time?"

There was a simultaneous rush for the gate. Their train had been gone nearly 15 minutes.

"Waal," said the old gentleman, "it's disapp'intin ter hev ter set here tell the nex' one goes, but we've had the benefit of the exposit, anyhow. Ye kin allus dror a moral from most anything that happens. It all goes ter show thet there ain't any way of bein rely safe in games of chance, no matter which side ye're on."

"Yes," said Zeb, "it all come ter pass 'long of hev in ter kill time in this here place."

"Whur's the hired man?"

"He told me thet, ez it would be a good while tell the train went, he reckoned he'd take some of his winnin's an paint the town a liddle bit."

The old lady passed around some red apples and remarked:

"To my way of thinkin, there's an other eternal truth thet this afternoon hez demonstrated."

"What is it, Mirandy?"

"A fool an his money are soon parted."

And her husband never took the trouble to inquire whether she meant him or the hired man.—Washington Star.

CANDY AND MARRIED LIFE.

Why Some Husbands Don't Supply Their Wives With Confectionery.

"Oh, how perfectly lovely!" said the girl in the pink dress. "I do so do on candy."

"Especially chocolate nougat," declared the young woman in white. "It is just too sweet for anything."

"Where did you get them? Was it Charley or Bob?"

"It was Charley," replied the girl with the box in her hand. "He always has the nicest candy."

"But you like Bob best?"

"Agnes, dear, you are entirely too inquisitive."

"You mustn't get married if you like candy."

"What has that to do with it?"

"Didn't you ever hear that the men who buy
